

I knew the world's news. I didn't know Iman's.

Even when I made the event, I couldn't always fully show up.

So I built Family Hub.

What if your family ran on rituals, not reminders?

Family Hub turns everyday parenting into shared rituals.

Five everyday struggles. Five gentle fixes.

Every feature solves a real problem most parents already live with.

Habits

THE PROBLEM

Kids need structure. Parents are tired of nagging.

THE SOLUTION

Stickers, streaks and charts that turn routines into a daily game.

THE VALUE

Kids build routines they're proud of. You stop being the bad cop.

Money

THE PROBLEM

Kids reach 18 without a basic grasp of money or how to manage it.

THE SOLUTION

Pocket money kids earn: then save, spend, or invest.

THE VALUE

Iman knows what it means to invest at five. So can your child.

Learning

THE PROBLEM

School emails, group chats, notes in bags: things slip.

THE SOLUTION

Shared calendar, noticeboard, and Learn for daily practice.

THE VALUE

You never miss sports day or parents' evening. Learning feels fun.

Heart

THE PROBLEM

Most days end with “How was school?” “Fine.” Nothing more.

THE SOLUTION

A daily journal and gratitude prompt the whole family fills in.

THE VALUE

Conversations open up. Kids feel seen. So do parents.

Together

THE PROBLEM

Meals, calendars, plans: all in different heads and apps.

THE SOLUTION

One shared home view: meals, calendars, announcements, more.

THE VALUE

Mental load actually gets shared. Less chaos. More us.

Everything family. In one place.

Nine tools that fit how your week actually runs.

Habits

Stickers, streaks, charts: routines kids own.

Money

Pocket money kids earn, save, and invest.

Calendar

School and home in one shared view.

Noticeboard

Every school assignment and notice in one place.

My Tasks

Each parent's own to-do list: only what's on them.

Journal

Daily gratitude the whole family fills.

Learn

Daily practice: maths, English, more.

Meals

Plan the week. Stop asking what's for dinner.

Rewards

Real prizes kids unlock with stickers.

At five, Iman is learning things that take most adults a lifetime.

Confidence

She chooses to build good habits.
She earns.
She sees her own progress
on a chart she made.

Connection

We talk every night about the highlights of her day and what she is grateful for.

Conversation

Money, school, feelings: things that used to be a struggle, are now play.

It's bigger than one family.

Family Hub creates measurable impact across three dimensions.

Social

- Kids feel seen through daily gratitude.
- Parents share the mental load.
- Money becomes a first language at home. A skill that opens every door.
- Family bonds in a fragmented world.

Economic

- Replaces 5+ apps families pay for.
- Saves hours of coordination every week.
- Kids who save become adults who invest.
- Stronger financial foundations for life.

Environmental

- Cuts paper waste from charts and notes.
- Habit framework scales to sustainability.
- Tidier homes. Less waste. Less stuff.

I want every family to be in each other's worlds.

Family Hub started as a tool for me and Iman.
It is becoming a tool for every family who feels the pull between being there and getting it all done.

Let's build it together.
